Globe art turns full circle

FOOT TUNNEL'S DOME TO SHOWCASE WORK BY ARTISTS

art show.

Greenwich Tunnel's spiral stair-

50ft below the

Thursday.

The show is part of the

Occupy My Time art

By MANDY LITTLE

and Woolwich in recent years since he undertook teaching training at People who descend Greenwich University.

He said: "My work is a frieze consisting of five panels Imetre by 1.5metres each. "It is inspired by the tunnel itself ground will be able to view work which is very evocative of the turn by artists Jonas of the century industry. I am very preoccupied with the style and imagery of the era." Christina Mitrentse He described the tunnel and its entrances as "unique spaces" for the work to be displayed in, adding: The duo's works will be "Thousands of people use the tunnel every day going to work and also lots of tourists from around the world." tunnel and 3D works will also be installed

The tunnel, designed by civil engineer Alexander Binnie, opened in 1902 and is classed as a public highway,

"It was built to enable workers to get to their jobs in the dockyards and shipwards on the Isle of Dogs. The cast-iron tunnel is 370metres long and is covered with 200,000 white glazed tiles.

Sue Cohen across Tunnel users will be able to meet the two artists in the tunnel on Saturday, December 6, from 11am until 4pm. The lifts operate between 7am and 7pm.